

NYC CLC/NYCOSH 2021 SAFETY & HEALTH SERIES

Precautions for COVID-19: When to say "NO!"

All four primary pillars of the pandemic precautions must work together if we are to be reasonably safe at work: masks, sanitizing, distancing, and ventilation. But what other information is needed? This seminar is designed to arm workers with enough basic information to know when a workplace is a reasonably safe place, or when it is best to say “No!”

The following questions will be asked and answered: Should cloth face coverings be one layer, two, or more? Should we wear more than one mask? Should we wear N95s? What about shields? How is PPE affected by workplace air pollution? Which sanitizers kill the virus without harming us? How do we know when manufacturers’ claims are bogus? What basic questions should all employers be able to answer about the ventilation in your workplace?

Wednesday, April 14, 2021

10:00 am – 12:00 pm

Register via Zoom:

https://us02web.zoom.us/meeting/register/tZwpdu2uqTsqGdSPzVTSF3A3vPA6TCpl_lea

Presented by:

Monona Rossol, Author & Safety Officer, United Scenic Artists, Local USA829, IATSE, and President of Arts, Crafts & Theater Safety

Sponsored by the New York City Central Labor Council (NYC CLC) and the New York Committee for Occupational Safety and Health (NYCOSH).

Please register by April 12th. For more information, contact Dwan Williams at dwilliams@nycosh.org

These training sessions are made possible, in part, by a grant from the New York State Department of Labor